

National Weather Service

Detroit/Pontiac

Multimedia Web Briefing February 23, 2012

Winter Weather Advisories through Friday

Forecast through Friday Morning

Low pressure will track east along the Ohio River this evening through Friday. Snow will be heavy across southeast Michigan on the north and northwest flank of the low.

Snow will continue Friday as the low tracks further east, generally ending around noon Friday.

Snow Accumulations

Thursday Night

Friday

Storm Total

Summary of Weather Highlights

- Snow begins this evening, with rain possibly mixing-in early.
- All snow is expected after 8pm.
- 2-4" expected for most places by 7am Friday.
- An additional 2-4" are expected from 7am-noon Friday, with heavier amounts near Lake Huron.
- Highest storm totals will be near the I-69 corridor.
- Lightest amounts near the Ohio border and also in Midland and Bay counties.
- Snow character will be towards the heavy, wet snow type.
- Snow subsides around noon Friday, except in the thumb region where lake effect snow will continue through the day.
- Winds will gust up to 30 mph Friday, creating blowing and drifting snow.